The history of Canada's multilingual state song and its road to inclusivity

1880
French beginnings
The original version of O Canada was written in French, and was first performed at a banquet in Quebec.

1908
English switch
Robert Stanley Weir, a Montreal lawyer, wrote the widely-adopted paroles anglaises.

1914
Patriot push
To honour fallen soldiers in World War One, a line was introduced: "True patriot love in all our sons command."

1980
Making it official
O Canada becomes the official national anthem – and a plan for a gender-neutral patriot line was already being pushed.

2018
Including everyone
After decades in the making, "True patriot love in all thy sons command" became "True patriot love in all of us command". As for the French version? No change was required.
